

You're Invited!

Help a Stranger, Help a Friend. From the Kitchen Table to the Community!

We invite you to participate in The Glass Ribbon Project from The Gary Rosenthal Collection's Art as a Catalyst program, bringing together people affected by breast cancer in a truly unique public awareness and fundraising effort.

Participants will work together to make mosaic sheets of pink glass. The glass will be fused at The Gary Rosenthal Collection studio in Maryland and then cut into beautiful strength stones (pieces meant to be held while undergoing chemotherapy or radiation treatment), giving those who have been touched by breast cancer a way to share their strength and give hope to others. Each glass mosaic can make up to four strength stones: one for the purchasing artist, one for a friend, one for a stranger, and one to be placed onto an 8-foot glass ribbon. This magnificent ribbon will be created with thousands of strength stones from all over the country, a public display of the strength felt by the community of women diagnosed with breast cancer and those whose lives have been affected by their battle. A portion of the proceeds from every sale will benefit breast cancer research and patient support.

How can you become involved?

...Host an event in your community! Invite friends, neighbors and strangers affected by breast cancer to your home, your church, your synagogue, your community center, or your school to create mosaics.

...Sponsor an event! Ask us how you or your organization can donate time or money to this exciting endeavor.

...Help spread the word!
